

PATRICK KINMONTH

DIRECTOR, DESIGNER

Patrick Kinmonth left Oxford University with a first-class degree in English Literature in 1979. Starting as Arts Editor at Vogue he broadened his scope to embrace painting, architectural and interior design, opera direction, stage and costume design, fashion curation and critical writing. Today he is recognised as a leading international designer of opera, ballet, art and fashion exhibitions. Highlights include VOGUE100 at The National Portrait Gallery London, HOUSE STYLE at Chatsworth and Valentino's retrospectives at Ara Pacis in Rome, the Louvre in Paris and Somerset House in London.

He has collaborated on design, exhibition, film and fashion projects for Missoni, Fendi, Gucci, Hermes and many others, as well as the restoration of the Wrightsman Galleries at the Metropolitan Museum, New York, where he also designed the exhibitions Dangerous Liaisons and Anglomania for the Costume Institute. He designed and curated India in Fashion, a ground-breaking exhibition at Nita Mukesh Ambani Cultural Centre in Mumbai.

Kinmonth made his opera directing debut in 2008 with a lauded staging of Madama Butterfly for Cologne Opera. Since then, he has directed and designed numerous productions including Samson et Dalila at Deutsche Oper Berlin, Don Giovanni and Rigoletto at Theater Augsburg, Die Gezeichneten at Cologne Opera, Daphne at Toulouse, Solaris at Cologne Opera, Gassmann's L'Opera Seria at La Monnaie, Brussels and La Clemenza di Tito at Badisches Staatstheater Karlsruhe. He directed The Seven Deadly Sins at Royal Danish Opera, and both Tannhäuser and Tristan und Isolde at Cologne Opera. He has also worked at Opernhaus Zürich, Staatsoper Hamburg, American Ballet Theatre New York, Lyric Opera of Chicago, San Francisco Opera, Houston Ballet and Teatro de la Maestranza, Seville.

Recent highlights include sets and costumes for La Rondine at Teatro alla Scala, Jenůfa at Opera Ballet Vlaanderen, and Alcina at Teatro dell'Opera, directed by Pierre Audi. A prolific designer for dance, Kinmonth has collaborated with Cathy Marston on Jane Eyre for Northern Ballet, Snowblind and Mrs Robinson for San Francisco Ballet, and Summer and Smoke in Houston. This season, his work includes George Sand at Opéra national de Paris, Jane Eyre at Royal Danish Ballet and The Sleeping Beauty at Opéra Nice Côte d'Azur.

Other productions include Seven Deadly Sins with Pontus Lidberg at Montpellier Danse Festival, Sleeping Beauty for Greek National Ballet, Les Noces for Ballet de Opéra Nationale de Paris, Raymonda for Royal Swedish Opera, A Guest House with Fernando Melo and Don Quixote with Aaron S. Watkin for Semperoper Ballet. Often described as 'a true renaissance man', and frequently honoured as an outstanding international artist, Kinmonth was voted World Innovator in Design by Wall Street Journal. He recently became International Editor-at-Large for World of Interiors and writes frequently about art and design for publications worldwide.
